ISO37001 Certification

Veolia Djur CJSC formally adopts comprehensive Anti-Bribery Management System (ABMS) and Achieves ISO 37001:2025 Certification

Veolia Djur announces the official implementation of its global Anti-Bribery Management System (ABMS) alongside achieving certification under ISO 37001, the international benchmark for anti-bribery management systems. This milestone reinforces the company's commitment to ethical business practices, transparency, and regulatory compliance across its operations worldwide.

Driving Corporate Integrity Across Global Operations

The newly implemented ABMS establishes a robust, zero-tolerance framework designed to prevent, detect, and address bribery risks across all business activities. By aligning with ISO 37001 standards, Veolia Djur CJSC ensures rigorous oversight across internal procedures and external partner relationships.

Key Highlights of the ABMS & ISO 37001 Framework

- Comprehensive Policy Scope: Applies to all internal personnel, including executives, full-time employees, and contractors, as well as external intermediaries, suppliers, and third-party vendors.
- Proactive Risk Management: Introduces enhanced due diligence protocols, ongoing compliance monitoring, and structured risk assessments for new and existing business relationships.
- Strict Compliance Assurance: Reaffirms compliance with local and international anti-corruption laws, prohibiting any direct or indirect offering or acceptance of improper advantages.
- Protected Whistleblowing Channels: Provides confidential and secure reporting mechanisms to allow employees and external partners to report suspected violations without fear of reprisal.

Expectations for Business Partners and Third Parties

As part of the ABMS policy scope, Veolia Djur CJSC holds all suppliers, agents, distributors, and third-party partners to the same rigorous compliance standards. External partners will undergo regular compliance checks and are required to adhere strictly to the company's anti-bribery guidelines during all joint engagements.
